It has been made for the Sega Dreamcast, Sega Game Gear, Playstation, Game Boy Color and Windows. The game was designed by Erik Leijonborg and released on January 14, 2001. The game starts off with a boy driving to his school on a golden, shiny Dreamcast. There, he enters an elevator with the Dreamcast and goes to the school. There, he enters the building and is greeted by a receptionist. The receptionist is reading a magazine when the boy comes in. She says, "Hello, [player's name], what can I do for you? Welcome to Pet Racer." The receptionist mentions that the Dreamcast is the "fastest, coolest game on the planet" and asks if the boy has heard of it. The receptionist says that the boy can also race with his friends on his Playstation and Game Boy Color. The boy replies, "No, I've never heard of those games." The receptionist gets excited and tells the boy to play a game of Pet Racer. "See what you can do. Good luck, play hard!" The receptionist says, "Ready? Set? Go!" The boy drives to school in the town of Petropolis. The Dreamcast is in the glove compartment. All of a sudden, the boy sees a message on his Dreamcast. The message says, "What is your birthday?" The boy replies, "May 12." The message continues, "You are not yet a racer." The dreamcast continues, "Congratulations, [player's name]! You are now a racer!" The boy replies, "Oh wow, I'm a racer." The dreamcast says, "You are a dream racer!" The dreamcast continues, "You must race in Petropolis." The dreamcast says, "Your Dreamcast is ready to race." The dreamcast is a black one. The dreamcast and the boy drive towards the entrance of the school. There are a lot of people cheering the boy on. The boy enters the school and is greeted by another receptionist. The receptionist tells the boy that the dreamcast is ready to race. The boy says, "Oh my god, the dreamcast is ready!" The receptionist says, "Do you have any friends you can race with?" The boy replies, "I've got a best friend 82157476af"
